PROHIBIT PROPAGANDA U. S. and Russia Enjoy First Day of Official Relations

By Kingsbury Smith

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(INS)—A virtual pact of political nonaggression in return for complete capitulation by the Soviets on practically everything desired by the United States was the bargain on which President Roosevelt and Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet Foreign Commissar, based their agreement for resumption of normal relations between the two nations.

This was learned today as the United States and the Soviet Union enjoyed the first day of official relations since establishment of the Soviet regime 16 years ago.

Although the series of understandings on which resumption of normal relations was based did not mention a non-aggression pact, one of these understandings contained the same wording incorporated in the basis of the political non-aggression pacts which the Soviets have with several European nations.

Furthermore, it was learned Litvinoff requested this particular understanding in return for the concessions granted by the Soviets.

Although worded in a round-about way, the understanding provides in effect that neither nation will engage in or permit military activities within their own territories aimed at armed struggle with one another.

It is included in Litvinoff's letter to President Roosevelt concerning the willingness of the Soviets to abstain from propaganda. It states the Soviet government agrees "not to form, subsidize, support or permit on its territory military organizations or groups having the aim of armed struggle against the United States, its territories or possessions, and to prevent any recruiting on behalf of such organizations and groups."

In his letter of reply, President Roosevelt incorporated Litvinoff's wording and added:

"It will be the fixed policy of the Executive of the United States within the limits of the powers conferred by the Constitution and the Laws of the United States to adhere reciprocally to the engagements above expressed."

State Department experts admitted that under international law the wording of this understanding concerning military organizations could be interpreted as applying to the armies of the respective nations.

Asked by International News Service whether he considered the essence of a political non-aggression pact was contained in this understanding, Litvinoff evaded a direct answer by replying:

"There is no danger of aggression between the two nations but sometimes parts of non-aggression mean not what is written but the effect they have generally."

In return for the virtual pact of non-aggression, Litvinoff made unprecedented pledges on propaganda, gave sweeping assurances concerning the religious freedom and legal rights of Americans who may work in Russia, abandoned completely all claims for damages allegedly caused by the American military expedition into Siberia in 1918-21, and renounced claim to approximately $15,000,000 belonging to former Russian governments and now on deposit in the United States.

The delicate question of the $187,000,000 debt which the United States Government loaned the Kérensky regime was left over for future settlement.

The Soviets desire to arrange a settlement of this debt without formal recognition since the latter declaration would make them liable to old debt claims of other nations. It therefore was decided to postpone the matter for future discussion.

TRUCKS SIDESWIPE

Two large motor trucks sideswiped early this morning along the Bristol Pike at Croydon. One of the vehicles was partly demolished, one entire side being ripped out and its cargo spilled over the highway. Soap powder and white lead was littered over the highway so thick that a crew of the State Highway Department had to be summoned to clear the road for traffic. The truck most seriously damaged belonged to the Miller Trucking Co., of Philadelphia. It was towed to Bristol where a wrecking crew of the owners took charge of it. The other truck continued on its way.

EDGELY

Miss Janet Banes is spending the weekend at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. Van Horn, Frankford.

Miss Winifred Lee Kephart, Altoona, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Machette, for several weeks.

Missionary Program Takes Place at Endeavor Rally

A missionary program, arranged for the rally of the Bucks County Christian Endeavor Union, in Bristol Presbyterian Church, last evening, was filled with accounts of active Christian endeavor.

The Rev. Tressler, who is active in missionary work among sailors, informed as to how approximately 150 men are fed twice daily and provided with lodging at a seaman's home where he is engaged. The Rev. A. Pohlman, Temple Lutheran Church, Philadelphia, a former missionary to Africa, recounted experiences in that dark continent, where he found it necessary to act not only as minister, doctor and teacher, but at times as a mechanic and farmer as well.

One hundred attended this session, which marked the annual missionary meeting. Many Christian Endeavor societies from various parts of the county were represented.

MAY SEEK LEGISLATION TO STOP STREET SKATING

Eastern Penna. Safety Council
Determined the Practice
Must Stop

MAKE PLEA TO PARENTS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—Unless children are barred from riding bicycles and roller skating on congested city streets, the Eastern Pennsylvania Safety Council will seek legislation to stop the practice in an effort to cut down the enormous number of deaths and accidents from this cause each year.

This was announced yesterday by W. J. H. Lloyd, managing director of the Eastern Pennsylvania Safety Council, which was organized by the Philadelphia Board of Trade to cut down the large yearly total of fatal and non-fatal preventable accidents in this region.

"We are making a plea to parents to caution their children against riding bicycles and roller skating on busy streets," Mr. Lloyd said. "Something has to be done soon because of the great increase in popularity of both bicycles and roller skates by children of school age."

"Proper steps to have the necessary legislation passed by State and city will be taken if the number of deaths and accidents from this cause continues to mount. Children are being killed too fast to permit the situation to be taken lightly."

"Outside of accidents in the home, our greatest problem in child safety is the rebirth of the pastimes of bicycle riding and roller skating in the last few years. This does not mean that children should be prevented from enjoying normal pleasure from bicycles and roller skates. But they should be cautioned against using them on streets where there is much automobile traffic or trolley tracks."

Tomorrow the observance of "Management and Employee Safety Week" will start. Speakers and demonstrators have been provided by Director Lloyd to conduct safety meetings and outline measures for the prevention of accidents in industrial plants, railroad yards, large garages and shops.

At the same time the drive to make Philadelphia the safest city in the country is being pushed in stores, offices, factories and homes. Of the 28,000 fatal accidents in homes in the United States in 1932, the vast majority were caused by children playing with matches, scalds from boiling water, explosions, clothes wringers, electric shocks from exposed wires and falls.

Of the 28,000 persons killed in accidents of this kind in the home, 19 per cent were more than 60 years old and 5 per cent were under 5 years of age. Besides the fatal accidents there were 4,195,000 non-fatal mishaps, estimated to cost $520,000,000 annually. The deaths from accidents in homes were about 1500 less than the toll taken in automobile and highway accidents.

Mrs. Rotunno Announces Marriage of Daughter

Mrs. Rachel Rotunno, 309 Lincoln avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Adeline Rotunno and Michael Alanskis, Trenton, N. J., in Doylestown, Thursday.

The ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace C. Hobensack.

Miss Eda DiRenzo, 1019 Wood street, and William Rotunno, brother of the bride, were the attendants.

The bride was costumed in a dark brown swaggar suit with matching accessories and Miss DiRenzo wore a maroon ensemble.

A dinner for the immediate families followed the ceremony, at the home of the bride's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Alanskis have taken up their residence in Trenton, N. J.

WRITES INTERESTINGLY OF MIDDLETOWN FRIENDS MEETING AND THE BOROUGH OF LANGHORNE AND HULMEVILLE

Esther W. Headly Contributes Informative Article to Philadelphia Evening Bulletin — Tells of the Origin and Early History of Friends' Meeting in Lower Bucks County

Writing in a recent issue of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, Esther W. Headly wrote interestingly of Middletown Friends Meeting, the borough of Langhorne and the borough Hulmeville.

The article in its entirety which proves most delightful and informative reading, follows:

Middletown Meeting, in the historic Meeting House on the Old Lincoln Highway in Langhorne, recently marked its 250th anniversary. It was the third of a triad of anniversaries of important rural Pennsylvania Meetings. Last March 2 the Friends of Falls Meeting observed its birthday in Fallsington, while the Abington Meeting marked a like occurrence on September 23.

The Middletown Meeting began in 1682 with gatherings of Friends at the houses of Nicholas Walne, John Otter and Robert Hall. The first assembly was on November 1 of that year. The meeting house, like that of Falls, was built in 1690, near the Neshaminy Creek, and the meeting was first called Neshaminy. The first Monthly Meeting was held on December 1, 1684, at Nicholas Walne's, the following meeting being at Hall's, whither the Friends were requested to bring data concerning births and marriages. Sometimes the Friends convened at the Widow Hayhurst's house, across the creek in Northampton township.

The first meeting house, built in 1690, was a mile west of Langhorne, and was erected by Thomas Stackhouse at a cost of £25, with an additional £10 for a stable. In 1698 a great improvement for that age was made in the building. One light of glass was put in each lower window, replacing the oiled paper.

The first marriage recorded was that of Henry Paxson to Margery Plumley in 1684. Paxson, whose first wife had died at sea, had come to this country with his father, William Paxson, and they were among the 30 land-owners among whom Middletown was divided in Holme's survey.

In 1734 the meeting was moved to the present site, and the present building erected in 1793. Up to 1705 the meeting continued to be known as "Neshaminy," but thereafter it assumed the township name of Middletown. In 1692, when the first group of Bucks County townships was organized, court was held in the edifice for the purpose of casting and settling boundary lines and governmental machinery. At the April term, 1700, the grand jury pointed out the necessity of placing a court house near the middle of the county, which we esteem

Grade twelve: Marguerite Beener, Agnes Bennett, Louis Daugherty, Wilbur Redman.

Announcement was made for the next rally, this to take place January 19th, at Cornwells Heights. The speaker on that occasion will be the Rev. James J. Bingham, Oak Lane, to be near Neshaminy meeting house."

The county court house at the time was in Falls township, and had been built in 1684. The suggestion of the jury was ignored, and in 1705 the county seat was located in Bristol. In 1725 the courts were moved to Newtown, only to be moved again in 1812. Langhorne was originally Four Lanes' End, so called because of the intersection at that point of the important Durham road, leading from the iron works at Durham, below Easton, and the Philadelphia-Trenton road, later to become the Lincoln highway. The Durham road, prior to the time the road was laid out from Pipersville to Doylestown, was the main road by which colonists from the upper counties could reach Philadelphia previous to 1711, when the Old York road was laid out.

GOVERNMENT RESTS CASE

Philadelphia, Nov. 18.—After presenting testimony for the past several weeks, the government shortly after 10 o'clock today rested its case against State Senator John J. McClure, and 75 co-defendants on trial in a huge liquor conspiracy in the United States district court here.

EXPECT BIG RUSSIAN TRADE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—Principal benefits to be derived from the restoration of normal relations between the United States and Soviet Russia, are expected to be:

The United States—the sale of millions of dollars worth of agricultural machinery, automobiles and motor accessories, cotton, rubber, metals, chemicals, and electrical supplies, if satisfactory credit can be arranged.

Soviet Russia—Tremendous enhancement of Soviet prestige, and a strengthening of the Russian position in the Far East where trouble has threatened to develop with Japan.

IDENTIFY WOMAN'S BODY

Norristown, Nov. 18.—The charred body of a young woman found near Willow Grove on a pyre of underbrush by hunters was identified today as that of Miss Tanka Hetman, about 35, of Philadelphia, a domestic. Identification was made from the clothing, because the girl's features had been burned beyond recognition.

Montgomery county detectives revealed they had unearthed a clue to the identity of the killer, although they declined to comment on the case. The girl was believed to have been killed as the climax to a lover's quarrel.

Personal notes found in a pocket-book near the burned body shed no light on the case, detectives said.

3 KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

Berlin, Nov. 18.—At least three persons were killed, and seven hurt seriously today when the fast Berlin-Paris express train collided with a repair train near Hanover, Germany. Two passengers were missing in the wreckage, and it was feared they also had been killed.

EDGELY PARENTS ASS'N PLANS CHRISTMAS PARTY

Children of The Community
Are To Be Guests At The Affair

FORTY ATTEND MEETING

meeting of the Edgely School Association was held in the school building Thursday evening, with about 40 members and friends present.

President Ralph Linck called the meeting to order, and Scriptures were read by Robert Lemon. Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Thomas Scott, secretary pro tem.

Walter Miller, principal of the school, in behalf of the boys and girls, thanked the association for the donation of the dodge and soccer balls. Plans are being made to hold a Christmas party for the children of the community some time in December.

The entertainment and card party committees will hold a card party Wednesday evening, November 22nd, at the school building, to help defray the expenses of the Christmas party, and to give to each child a pleasant time.

The eighth grade won the banner for having the greatest number of parents present at this meeting.

There being no further business the meeting adjourned, and the balance of the evening was enjoyed by the presentation of a musical program under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Schorsch.

In the orchestra were five pupils of the Edgely school, who made their first public appearance at this meeting.

The following program was well rendered and thoroughly enjoyed by all:

Selection, "Wearing of the Green," Edgely orchestra, piano, Emma La Rue, mandolins, Edith Hobbs, Mary La Rue, Helen Pettit, Dorothy Lancaster; piano selection, Good Night, Little Girl of My Dreams, Edith Hobbs; Edgely Orchestra, Long, Long Ago, encore, Washaw Moon; Margaret Schorsch WCAU Orchestra, composed of Doris, Vilma, Gladys Yeagle, Letty Everitt, Lawrence Krusen, Kentucky Rose; Piano selection, In Old Shanty

THIRTY ORGANIZATIONS LISTED IN COUNTY

All Are Endeavoring to Advance the Cause of Farming

SOME OVER 50 YRS. OLD

There are at least 30 farmers' organizations including Granges, farmers' clubs and extension, breeders' and improvement associations in Bucks County. All of these have as their objective the advancement of farming and to take up in a mutual manner some of the problems of rural life.

Many of these organizations, particularly the farmers' clubs, herd improvement and producers' associations, co-operate with the county farm agent, William F. Greenwalt, and the director of home economics, Miss Rhoadena A. Armstrong. It is to these persons the organizations frequently go for advice and instructions.

Meetings are held regularly by these farm organizations and during these meetings farm and household topics are discussed. In addition to the discussion of these topics as well as many others, literary programs feature the meetings. The children in the various communities often take part in the programs.

Some of these organizations, especially the Granges, are the sponsors of calf, pig, potato and 4-H clubs for the young people. Some of the Granges also sponsor juvenile organizations of Patrons of Husbandry.

Records from the office of the Bucks County Agricultural Association show that located in various sections of the county are thirteen Granges and six farmers' clubs. In addition to these, are two Pomona Grange organizations and 13 other educational farm organizations.

One of the oldest Granges in the county is the Middletown Grange which holds its meetings in the Friends' school house at Langhorne every two weeks. This Grange has been in existence for more than half a century and several of its pioneer members are still living. Another old farm organization is the Solebury Farmers' Club. This organization has also been in existence for at least half a century and its meetings are held monthly in the homes of the members.

Some of the Granges hold their meetings every two weeks and others meet monthly. It is believed that more than 3,000 persons are affiliated in some way or other in these thirty farm units in the county. Some people belong to both the Grange and the farmers' club.

While the Grange has been in existence for more than fifty years, its progress in the county was rather slow until some years ago, when these organizations sprang up in various localities, including Chalfont, Spintertown, Kellers Church, Plumsteadville, Richlandtown and Buckingham. In some places the Granges took the place of the farmers' clubs.

The thirteen Granges in the county are as follows: Carversville, Chalfont, Cedar Ridge, Delaware Valley, Edgewood, Great Swamp, Kellers Church, Middletown, Pineville, Plumsteadville, Richland, Franklin at Springtown, and Tyro Hall at Buckingham.

These Granges are subordinate bodies of the two Pomona Granges known as Upper Bucks Pomona, No. 50, and Lower Bucks and Philadelphia County Pomona, No. 22. Pomona Grange meetings are held at least four times a year.

The six farmers' clubs in the county are the Buckingham, Doylestown Township, Northampton, Solebury, Upper Mafekfield Liberty and Warrington.

Practically all of these clubs and Granges are the sponsors of the community farm products shows in the Fall and at present they are making preparations to hold them either the latter part of this month or early in December. They are also the supporters of the Bucks County Farm Products Show which for some years took place in Doylestown. Later it was held in the Grange hall in Plumsteadville and last year it was held at Tyro Hall Grange, Buckingham, where it will also take place this year.

Farmers particularly interested in the breeding of cattle and poultry and the growing of potatoes, vegetables and fruit also are affiliated with various organizations, all of which are

RECOUNT CHANGES SCHOOL DIRECTOR IN YARDLEY BORO'

James E. Groome Loses Out
To Rev. Francis B.
Barnett

FEW VOTES DIFFERENCE

Rockhill, West District, Re-count Changes Majority and Minority Inspectors

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 18.—An official recount of the ballots cast in Yardley Borough for school director changed the results and a preacher was named to the school board instead of James E. Groome, being named as the original returns indicated.

The Rev. Francis B. Barnett, Democratic and Republican candidate, was declared elected to the school board as a result of the recount held at the court house here last night.

Previously the regular count had established the Republican candidate, James Groome, as the winner by two votes. The official record after last night's recount stands: Barnett, Democratic and Republican, 257; Groome, Republican, 253. All the other results were found to be correct.

In the Rockhill-West, Rockhill district, the only change produced by the recount was that a majority inspector became a minority inspector. John Nelson was found to be the minority inspector and Raymond Leister will be the majority inspector.

The recount was made by Wesley Bunting and George Ross, Doylestown attorneys, assisted by the two recorders, Prothonotary John High and Court Stenographer J. Edgar Moore, of Lansdale. The recount showed that 254 ballots were cast, including 152 split tickets, 59 straight Democratic votes, 70 straight Republican votes, and 3 spoiled ballots. Each ballot was counted to ascertain the correct totals for each office.

Travelogues Witnessed By Club Women at The Grand

As guests of Edward Lynn, manager of the Grand Theatre, members of the Travel Club and their guests participated in a "trip" yesterday afternoon, but a trip in which the scenery moved, rather than the individuals.

Assembled in the Grand Theatre, the women saw views of India, Italy and New York city. The "trip" abroad was prefaced with a reel showing life on ship-board. Then followed beautiful scenes taken in India and Italy, one of the reels showing in an amusing manner the pursuit of various cures in Italy, these including water and mud-baths, "Manhattan Medley," pictures taken of buildings, streets, and crowds in New York city was most interesting, and the motion picture program closed with a Mickey Mouse Christmas film, "A Good Deed." The presentations by Mr. Lynn were much appreciated by the club women and their guests.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. George Ardrey and Mrs. Richard French.

Prior to the showing of the motion pictures, Mrs. Theodore McGeorge introduced Mrs. Sarah S. McNeil, assistant director of public welfare, Philadelphia. Mrs. McNeil is the only woman member of Mayor Moore's cabinet. Mrs. McNeil told of public welfare work in Philadelphia, telling of the $9,000,000 invested in recreational centres such as playgrounds, swimming pools, etc. She told of the joy and benefit received by children of the poor from their three weeks' stay at Camp Happy during the summer.

Special Service This Afternoon at St. Mark's

At 3.30 this afternoon in St. Mark's church there will be a special ceremony, "The Blessing of Babies and Little Children" by the Marist Missionaries. This will be followed by the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

From 7.45 to 8.45 this evening a Holy Hour will be observed. The mission for women which has been well attended will come to a solemn close tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock.

The mission for men will open Sunday night at 7.45 and a cordial invitation is extended to non-Catholics to attend the exercises.

Allentown Mourns Death Of Brigadier Gen'l Trexler

ALLENTOWN, Nov. 18.—(INS)—A shocked community today prepared to pay a last tribute to Brigadier General Henry Clay Trexler, one of the state's wealthiest industrialists, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident near Easton. He was 79.

Private funeral services will be held Tuesday but the thousands who knew General Trexler will be allowed to view his body before.

He leaves his widow, the former Mary M. Moser, and two brothers: Frank M. Trexler, president judge of the state superior court, and Edwin G. Trexler, a retired Allentown business man.

JOIN THE RED CROSS

The Red Cross is in the midst of its annual roll call. It invites the American people to come to its support by pledging or renewing their membership at the nominal fee of one dollar.

There is in the United States no organization more deserving of popular approval and support than the Red Cross. None, we believe, will dispute this. Its field of active service is as wide as human suffering. In the midst of war and disease, pestilence and hunger it is found pursuing courageously and efficiently its task of ministering to the needs of those requiring help.

New duties were found by the Red Cross in connection with the depression. Assistance, in the way of food and clothing, was given by it to more than 25,000,000 persons in the last 18 months. This it did without neglecting in any way its regular duties. More than 117 communities in which disaster in some major form had struck felt its hand of relief. Its numerous other duties were performed with an unmatched devotion to its ideal of service.

The Red Cross has a fair membership in Bristol. It hopes that all present members will renew their membership and that new ones will come into the organization from this state.

No call is too great or too far away for the Red Cross to answer. It stands ready at all hours of the day and night to respond. When disaster strikes in the way of floods, earthquakes or other form, its representatives are among the first on the scene.

It has a record of service probably unmatched by that of any organization. Quick and efficient service is given, which makes its work of double value.

The American people owe a great debt to the Red Cross. To show their appreciation of what it has done and is doing is a duty resting upon them. They have an opportunity to do this at a financial cost which few can not afford.

ABANDON PLANTS ABROAD

The best news of the year from across the waters is that American manufacturers are abandoning their factories in foreign countries and giving their export business back to their domestic plants.

In the pre-depression days many thousands of American workers were thrown out of their jobs by the transfer of their employer's business to new factories built in Europe and in Canada. American corporations holding for British trade built branch factories in Canada or England. The trade of Continental Europe was obtained by setting up plants in European countries having favorable trade agreements and currency exchanges with the other nations.

This strayed but not lost business is slowly coming home because the embargo on gold and the change in dollar's value have virtually wiped out the financial advantages of foreign exchange, and because wage differentials are almost eliminated.

There isn't so much export business any more, but bringing it home will tend to increase the efficiency of the domestic factories, which depend on volume for their efficient operation, as well as provide new impetus for business recovery.

Economists fighting over the country's gold policy might try to find the golden mean.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES ARE ANNOUNCED FOR THE BRISTOL CHURCHES FOR SUNDAY AND THROUGHOUT THE COMING WEEK

Bristol Presbyterian Church

"A Dwelling God" will be the subject of the sermon at the Sunday morning service at Bristol Presbyterian Church. The Rev. S. Brooks Knowlton, minister, will preach from the text, Psalm 77:16, "Yes, this is my grief, that the Most High no longer has the strength he had" (Moffatt's translation). Special music for the service will include a solo; an anthem by the choir, "Bless the Lord, O My Soul" (Edwards); and organ selections, "Andante Sostenuto" (Newell), "By Still Waters" (Horspool).

The subject of the sermon at the evening service will be, "As A Man Thinketh," the text, Jeremiah, 6:19, "Behold, I shall bring evil to this people, even the fruit of their thoughts."

"The Unalterable Condition of Our Forgiveness" is the minister's subject for the 10.45 a. m. service. "Since so many seemingly think that there are no conditions to our forgiveness and nothing to prevent obtaining forgiveness, this should prove to be a timely topic," says the Rev. Clarence Howell. At the evening service at 7.45, the subject will be "The Man Who Blamed his Wife."

Wednesday, 7.45 p. m., prayer meeting; Thursday, 7 p. m., Junior League; Thursday, 8 p. m., pictures, Century of Progress, silver offering.

St. James's P. E. Church

Services for Sunday: 8 a. m., holy communion; 9.30, church school; 10.45, morning prayer and sermon; 7.45, evening prayer and sermon.

A regular meeting of the Vestry will be held Monday evening at eight, at the vestry room of the church. The Mothers' Guild will meet Tuesday at the parish house.

On Thanksgiving Day, a celebration of Holy Communion will be held in the church at eight a. m. The offering for that service will be given to the Episcopal Hospital. The union service of the Protestant Churches will be held at Bristol M. E. Church at 9.30, with the Rev. H. Zepp as the preacher.

The Rector states he hopes all are using daily their Christmas banks, putting aside a coin a day as a Christmas offering. Plans are under way for the annual Every Member Canvass early in December. It is asked that every family connected with the church will be willing to contribute weekly to the support of the church, even if only a small amount.

HOLLYWOOD. . . . —They'll tell you that Randy Scott is going to Europe to see the sights with Cary Grant but another purpose is romantic.

For, according to Vivian Gaye, pretty manager of Sari Maritza, the handsome North Carolina star also goes to London to meet her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bezenecet. And if certain matters can be arranged, Vivian will be leaving Hollywood about December 15 to spend the holidays with her family.

Will there be a marriage? "Randy and I are not officially engaged," says Vivian. "My family are old-fashioned and how do I know they are going to like him? Or he them? I'm very glad, though, that Randy could get away at this time to meet them. Our plans will have to be decided later."

The boys who grab photographs for the fan magazines and the picture services are great matchmakers and follow a Hollywood romance from its inception to the divorce court.

There was that time the other night when Junior Laemmle left a hotel dining room with a well known ingenue. He was asked to pose and did. Then the photographer asked for a second picture.

"And put your arm around her this time," he suggested.

"What would that be for?" asked Junior, amused.

"Oh, that will be for the February issue," was the unabashed reply.

A young lady who is not always so compliant to the photographers' wishes is Bette Davis. In the prolonged absence of her husband, Bette naturally goes out some with other men. (Remember when she ribbed the gossips and appeared with eight boy-friends at a Hollywood premiere?) But when she goes dancing with one man she dodges pictures. Just two nights ago, she and playwright Lynn Riggs, author of "Green Grow the Lilacs," sidestepped the lenses at a fashionable dining place.

The impetuous Lupe Velez has gone on another buying spree in the antique shops. She's encumbered with $1800 worth of relics which, by her own confession, there's no place for in the house except in Johnny's bathroom. So there they will go.

Meanwhile, Tarzan plans to fly to his mate over week-ends while she is on location with the "Laughing Boy" company in Cameron, Arizona.

QUICK GLIMPSES

Gertrude Michael, Broadway actress who played the jealous society girl in "In No Angel," is wearing a three carat diamond ring put on her finger by C. Ray Gilliland, airline official and late admirer of Claire Windsor. . . . The split between Estelle Taylor and Rowland Brown seems to be definite. He's even going to all the late spots without her. . . . Remembering Al Tolson, many years of training in stage superstitions, friends of the singing comedian are amazed. Al started his new picture, "Wonder Bar," on the thirteenth of the month. . . . The gang at the Colony Club gave Marjorie Wellman a great hand when she showed up on crutches. . . . Here's one for the book. Earl Roy of the M-G-M sound department, met a wealthy Osage Indian on a recent trip south. The other day, the Indian, Louis Bravo, showed up at the studio in a large hearse. He insists on riding in a rocking chair so they put one in the hearse and drove him all the way out from Oklahoma.

. . . Paramount is crowning on George Raft because he walked out for the afternoon to attend the U. S. C. Stanford football game. But privately some of the officials are probably laughing at the funny alibi note he left.

This IS news. Ruth Chatterton and George Brent made one of their rare public appearances the other night at the Beverly Wilshire Gold Room. . . . Gwen Heller was there with Mervyn LeRoy and Dick Powell. What will Chester Erskine say to all this talk about Gwen and Powell? . . . The gossips are leveling on Irene Hervey and Dean Markham. They went to the game together Saturday, to the T. Netchers that night and dancing to Gus Arnheim's music on Sunday. . . . Patricia Ellis and Junior Laemmle and Jean O'Shea and Jerry Horwin at the same spot.

somewhere in the shopping center:

One purseful of opportunities...

THE opportunities, to which we refer, are the daily bargains to be found in every shopping area. Some people find them quite by chance . . . stumble over them blindly . . . and acquire them with astonishment. Others never seem to be in the right store at the right time: If there's a 25% marked-down sale of shoes at Smith's, they are buying at Brown & Co. . . . If a grocer three blocks away is clearing out his canned goods at half-price, they are at the corner store making routine purchases.

But—there are some people who always find these opportunities. Their money buys them more—and better—merchandise than their neighbors'. Why? Not through good luck, you may be sure; but simply because these people read the advertisements in their daily newspapers.

This advertising is NEWS. It tells WHAT. . . . It shows WHERE. Those who read it every day are informed. They save themselves time, trouble, and DOLLARS. . . . And their homes are always up-to-date, their clothes stylish . . . their meals fresh with seasonal variety . . . all through the opportunities that advertising gives them.

It pays to read all advertisements in this paper

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

THIS is National Honey Week when we are reminded that honey is a delicious and flavorful sweet with many uses.

Broccoli is a new-old cousin of cauliflower, rather new to this country but actually the vegetable from which cauliflower was developed. It is cooked and served like cauliflower, discarding the leaves and cooking merely the flower head and peeled stalk.

Green beans continue to be plentiful, good and very reasonable. Local and southern spinach are both in market together with cabbage, cauliflower and Brussels sprouts. Winter salads need not lack for fine quality lettuce. Plenty of salad dressing helps to make them good energy foods and the lettuce with fruits and vegetables supply other necessary food elements. Grapefruit is the best quality citrus fruit on the market though there are available California and Florida oranges.

Soldier May be Next New York Police Chief

Army Men Mentioned to Head New York Police

The nation will watch with deep interest the manner in which a soldier deals with the crime problem if, as has been rumored, Mayor-elect Fiorello LaGuardia appoints one of these three men as new Police Commissioner of New York. Brigadier General Polham D. Glassford can boast a distinguished record in the U. S. Army and as Police Chief of Washington, D. C., where his masterly handling of the bonus army situation aroused the admiration of the entire nation. Major General Fechet also has an enviable military career. He served in the World War with the U. S. air forces. He became chief of the air corps in 1927 and resigned from the army last year. Major General John F. O'Ryan, one of the most decorated of American soldiers, commanded the 27th Division A. E. F. in France and Belgium. He is that rare combination of lawyer, business man and soldier.

NEW YORK, (U. I. N.)—In the ordinary course of events the selection of a new Police Commissioner by Mayor-elect Fiorello LaGuardia of New York might be considered a purely local matter. But when one considers the intensive warfare now going on between the forces of crime and those of law and order, the Mayor-elect's ultimate decision may have far-reaching consequences—affecting the entire nation.

Prominently mentioned among the possible appointees for the post of heading New York's "Finest" are three soldiers, who have behind them enviable military careers and any one of whom, observers believe, would make an ideal man for the job.

The three are Brigadier General Polham D. Glassford, U. S. A., retired, Major General James E. Fechet, also retired, and Major General John F. O'Ryan. Each of the three has demonstrated his ability as a leader, and, more important, none of the three is harassed to any political chariot. Besides, a soldier police commissioner would be on fairly familiar ground as head of what is probably the finest non-military body of men in the entire world.

General Glassford's name is familiar to the reading public by reason of his masterly handling of the bonus army fiasco in Washington last year. The fiery general, who to use common parlance, had the bonus army boys eating out of his hand, resigned as head of the Washington Police Department after many weeks of bitter controversy which followed use of regular army troops in the eviction of the war veterans from the capital. Glassford always has maintained that he could have induced the bonus army to leave peacefully without the drastic employment of tear gas and bayonets.

He won the applause of the entire country by his humane treatment of the men with whom he had fought in France, both during his tenure of office in Washington and since his retirement, for he never has ceased to work in the interests of destitute ex-service men.

Incidentally, Glassford attained the rank of Brigadier General in France. He was one of the youngest men in the U. S. Army to attain that rank, being only 35 at that time.

Fechet Air Expert

Major General Fechet, who retired from the army last year, had a distinguished military career, including as a non-commissioned officer during the Spanish-American war, he fought his way up until he reached commissioned rank.

During the World War, General Fechet was connected with the air service, and in 1925 he succeeded brigadier General William Mitchell as Assistant Chief of the flying branch of the Army. He received his commission as Major General on his appointment as chief of the air corps in 1927.

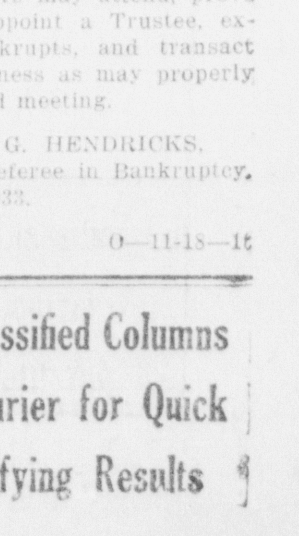

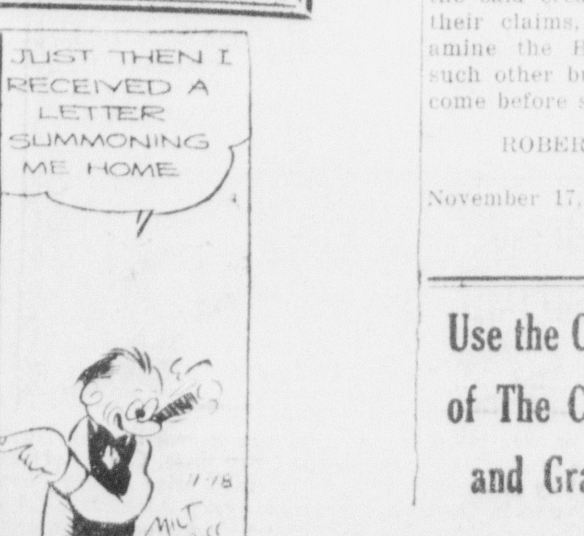

Seasoned Campaigner
Major General O'Ryan is the rare combination of lawyer, business man and soldier, a distinct asset to the post for which he is mentioned. He took his LL.B. at New York University in 1898, and was graduated from the Army War College in 1914.

General O'Ryan commanded the New York Division on the Mexican border in 1916, and the following year was appointed to command of the 27th Division A. E. F. in France and Belgium. He is one of the most decorated of American military men, having been honored by many countries for distinguished service in the World War.

Present indications are that one of these three men will be next Police Commissioner of New York. Regardless of which one is appointed to the post, John Q. Citizen can claim a victory, for another big gun is on his side in the war on crime.

RED-JACKETS TO MEET ST. ANN'S TEAM HERE

(By T. M. Juno)

Seeking revenge, the Frankford Red Jackets will pay a visit to St. Ann's field tomorrow afternoon, meeting the undefeated St. Ann's team.

Last season when the Red Jackets were being organized they were handed a 12-0 beating from the locals. This year the Red Jackets have re-organized and have a fast line-up which will come here with the intention of stopping the winning streak of the Bristol team.

This week during the practice sessions, Coach "Mike" DeRisi drilled the Saints on the defensive work of short passes. It is known to the local men that the Frankford team have a perfected short pass system. Also, in the Red Jackets backfield is a fast end runner by the name of Davis. This player will be watched by the St. Ann's wingmen.

The Purple and Gold will go on the field with a very weak team. Injuries have hit the team and several players "Tink" Spadacino, stellar guards will be lost to the team for the rest of the season because of injured shoulders. "Pete" Borne, backfield ace, is also on the injured list and may or may not get into the game.

"Moonie" Seneca missing from last week's Doylestown game will be back into the line as will Ray Pieo who was out with an injured leg.

Next week, the opposition will be the Lamberville Ramblers with the Seleville Green Jackets playing here in the Bucks County Championship tilt on Thanksgiving Day.

ANDALUSIA

The Men's Club of the Church of the Redeemer sponsored another card party, Wednesday evening. There were 23 tables of pinochle players. Mrs. Margaret Heilstein won first prize, 697; Thomas Stryling, 693; Mrs. Paul Knight, 673; Mrs. Bertha Stryling, 661; and George Schwartzman, 654. Refreshments were served.

The Get-Together Club met as usual Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Mary Jackson. Pinochle was played by Mrs. Forrest Jackson winning first prize and Mrs. Harry Barnett winning consolation. A cold supper was served after which Mrs. J. B. Cunningham opened her many gifts which were presented by the members in honor of her birthday. Other games were played and enjoyed.

Mrs. J. B. Cunningham was the Wednesday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon King, Frankford.

Mrs. Turner, who is in the Episcopal Hospital, is convalescing slowly. Miss Marie Metz is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hibbs.

EMILIE

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Lovett had as guests recently, Miss Thelma Satterthwaite, Palsington; Miss Mildred Guthrie, Kennett Square, and Ralph Ritter, West Chester.

Mrs. Albert R. Randall, Mr. and Mrs. T. Elias Prall, Miss Martha Prall, Randall Prall were Sunday callers of Miss Mary Randall, Trevoise; and dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cramer, Hatboro. Mrs. Randall is remaining for a visit at the Cramer home and will also spend some time with her sister, Mrs. Jennie Randall, Horsham.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Bixler, Cornwells, were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chapman.

The new asbestos roof on the Emilie M. E. Church is now completed.

Writes Interestingly Of Middletown Friends Meeting

dle of clothes and a flail."

He went to William Paxson's farm, and obtained work there as a thresher all winter. In 1732, he married Paxson's daughter, the same year in which he became a merchant. Six years later he built the stone and brick house opposite the tavern and shifted his store into the southeast room, a chamber some 12 feet square. At present, the American Legion holds meetings here.

Nicholas Walne, so outstanding in the history of the Middletown Friends, came over from Yorkshire on the "Welcome" in 1682. Another Friend, Thomas Langhorne, of Westmoreland, arrived in 1684, having been virtually persecuted out of England. Known as an eminent preacher, he had been frequently imprisoned and in 1664 had been fined £5 for attending Friendly meetings. His son, Jeremiah, became an outstanding landowner. He succeeded Phineas Pemberton as clerk of the court in 1708, and a year later began using the "worldly form of writing dates. In 1726, at the same time he was occupied with 11 others in the formation of the company to work the iron mines at Durham and to erect the foundry there, Langhorne was appointed the "third judge" of the provincial court. The "supreme" court having meanwhile been restored to the province, Langhorne in 1731 became its "second justice," subsequently becoming the chief justice. He owned 2,000 acres in Warwick and New Britain townships, 2,000 acres around Perkaskie, as well as large holdings along the Lehigh, while his country-seat, known as Langhorne Park, comprised 800 acres.

William Carter was another prominent early resident of Middletown. He was successively alderman and mayor of Philadelphia, entering upon the latter position in 1711, and retiring to his estate in Middletown when his term expired. Of less enviable reputation was Gilbert Hicks, the high sheriff of Bucks county in 1776, and an ardent Tory.

In 1809, when a post office, with Robert Croasdale as postmaster, was established at Four Lanes' End, the village's name was changed to Attleborough, although some reason exists for the belief that the name is a corruption of "Attlebury." With increased staging facilities Attleborough became an important point on the coach route to Trenton and New York, being 21 miles from Philadelphia.

In 1877 the Bound Brook Railroad called its station at the foot of the hill by the title "Langhorne," which in a short time became the official name of the town.

While Jeremiah Langhorne was the important man of Four Lanes' End, farmers took their grain to a mill a mile away on the east bank of the Neshaminy, a hamlet called Milford. At this point travelers down the Durham road on the way to Philadelphia forded over the creek. In 1796 John Hulme bought the old mill, and immediately established shops, factories and a bank, the first in Bucks county. The institution later to become "The Farmers National Bank of Bucks County," was organized on December 12, 1814, with Hulme as president, and George Harrison cashier. A part of George Hulme's house was used as banking room, and the president was directed to supply a large sheet-iron covered chest, furnished with strong locks and bolts "in a secure manner," presumably to house at least a portion of the original capital of $60,000. The bank was moved to Bristol in 1824 and still occupies its original building on Radcliffe street. It was reorganized as a national bank in 1865.

A post office was established at Milford in 1809, and the place became Hulmeville. In 1817 the community had three sizable industrial establishments, John Garsed's Middlesex Mills, making cotton yarns, being the oldest, while Ferdinand Reetz' haircloth works, which came from Philadelphia, and Markgraf & Henry's raw silk and "Tarcoman" curtain factory, began operations in 1884 and 1885 respectively.

Hulmeville was incorporated in 1872, and a provision in the charter declared the selling of intoxicating beverages to be ever prohibited, but the clause was later declared unconstitutional.

The Winter Gold Rush

By BURNLEY

SIXTEEN open golf tournaments, aggregating $60,000 prize money, will feature the 1933-34 winter golf season, which got under way last Saturday when the National Capital open, with a $2,000 purse, was held at the Kenwood C. C., Bethesda, Md.

December 8, 9 and 10, and the Agua Caliente open, February 1 to 4, which carries a purse of $7,500 for distribution.

All the old familiar faces will be out in force for the current winter gold rush. Craig Wood, last year's big money winner for the winter season, will be out to grab himself some more rich purses, while Denny Shute, British Open champ; Gene Sarazen, Leo Diegel, Tommy Armour, Walter Hagen and the other famous pros will be on hand as usual.

Most of the pros who take the annual winter trek wind up in the red, as they must pay their own expenses and gamble on their ability to win a few good sized purses.

Since only the few who finish on top in each tourney get out of the purse, it necessarily follows that the great majority of pros in the tournament will merely be playing for the exercise. However, most of the professional golfers are gamblers at heart, and each winter they hit the long tournament trail again, hoping that a few good breaks will enable them to drag down a juicy purse or two.

Meanwhile, Bob Harlow has drafted a so-called code of decorum for professional tournament golfers, which is scheduled to be submitted for adoption at the annual meeting of the P. G. A. next week at Chicago. Apparently it is Harlow's desire to have the professionals deport themselves so impeccably as to discourage even the faintest whispers of criticism, and thus promote bigger and better tournaments.
